DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections – 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1-6, 8-9, 13-19, and 21-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bouvier et al (US 6,430,276).
2. In regards to claims 1 and 13, Bouvier discloses a method of selecting an access network from among one or more access networks (Public Internet 30, Private Intranet 20, and Extranet 40) capable of providing service to a mobile communication station (Abstract, col. 2 lines 14-28, and col. 4 lines 55-59), the method comprising: receiving a request for access to an access network, said request including at least one service requirement (col. 5 lines 1-5 and col. 6 lines 25-34); determining an availability of each of at least one access network based on said at least one service requirement (col. 9-10 lines 57-11); selecting, based on one or more user preferences, an access network determined to be available from said at least one access network; and accessing said selected access network (col. 6 lines 43-49, col. 7 lines 29-61, and col. 10 lines 4-11).

Art Unit: 2642

3. In regards to claims 2 and 15, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, further comprising selecting a service type in said selected access network based on said user preferences (col. 6 lines 43-49 and col. 7 lines 29-61).
4. In regards to claims 3 and 16, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, further comprising retrieving said user preferences from a user profile (HLR and VLR) stored in said mobile communication station (col. 2 lines 29-35).
5. In regards to claims 4 and 17, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, further comprising retrieving said user preferences from a subscriber identification module (col. 2 lines 29-35, col. 6 lines 30-34, and col. 6 lines 43-46).
6. In regards to claims 5 and 18, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, further comprising manually entering said user preferences via a man-machine interface (col. 8 lines 55-57).
7. In regards to claims 6 and 19, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, wherein said user preferences include a lowest service cost (tariff) (col. 5 lines 10-14, 7 lines 29-38, and col. 10 lines 4-11).
8. In regards to claims 8 and 22, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, wherein said determining step includes continuously scanning a broadcast pilot signal from each access network (col. 10 lines 4-11).
9. In regards to claims 9 and 23, Bouvier discloses the method and mobile communication station, wherein said determining step includes estimating a status of said mobile communication station within each access network (col. 2 lines 14-35 and col. 10 lines 4-11).

10. In regards to claim 14, Bouvier discloses the mobile communication station, wherein said software program is further configured to report said access network selection information to said application (col. 7 lines 39-47).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

12. Claims 7, 10-12, 20, and 24-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bouvier et al (US 6,430,276).

13. Bouvier discloses all of claims 7, 10, 11, 12, 20, 24, 25, and 26 limitations, except the method and mobile communication station, wherein said user preferences include a minimum power consumption, bit rate requirement, maximum transfer delay, and maximum frame error rate. Examiner takes official notice that these user preferences are well known in the art. They are often used as a way of allowing the user to minimize power usage and to reduce the amount of error within a system, therefore, providing a more user friendly method of accessing a particular network.

Conclusion

14. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Gupta et al (US 6,567,667) teach a domain selecting system and method. LaPier et al (US 6,333,931) teach a method and apparatus for interconnecting a circuit-switched telephony network and a packet-switched data network, and applications thereof.
